Researching Your Home and the People Who Lived There Presented by Diana Staresinic-Deane

Researching a property, be it an old home, a new business, or a section of pastureland, can do more than tell us the history of a space. It can also build a human connection to the people who came before us and the times in which they lived. This talk shares creative ways to study documents and assemble relevant narratives from maps, deeds, newspapers, and often unsought or unknown resources.

For this program, CCGS hosts Kansas Humanities speaker, Diana Staresinic-Deane, executive director of the Franklin County Historical Society, and the Old Depot Museum in Ottawa.

Hello everyone! Your friendly Librarian here. I just wanted to give a brief update on our library collection. As most of you may know, this has been a hot topic for some time now, with the major concerns being when to move it and where it will go. And it all came to a head this past week. For those of you who don't know, an agreement was reached between our President of the Genealogical Society, Vicki Cyr-Katz, and the President of the Frank Carlson Library Board, Lora Watson. The Genealogical Society Library collection will remain at the Frank Carlson Library for the time being. I plan to discuss this further at our next meeting on March 9th. If you have any questions, please feel free to email me at ashley88hay@gmail.com and we can discuss any questions you may have. Thank you all!! --- Ashley Hay, Librarian CCGS
